

Sleep

Brief Informational Guide

Many children on the autism spectrum struggle with sleep. Autistic children may struggle with falling asleep, staying asleep, or waking up too early. Additionally, over half of autistic children have one or more chronic sleep problems. Sleep is extremely important for growth, learning, and behavior. If your child is having problems with sleep, there are many ways to help improve it.

Questions to Consider for Your Child's Sleep

- “Does my child have trouble going to bed or falling asleep?”
- “Does my child seem tired/groggy during the day?”
- “Does my child awaken during the night & have trouble going back to sleep?”
- “How many hours of sleep does my child need and do they get it?”
- “Does my child snore, pause their breathing, or choke during sleep?”

Factors that can Affect Sleep

- Inconsistent Sleep Routine
- Medication Side Effects
- Sources of Discomfort (e.g. Constipation, Headache)
- Anxiety/Worrying
- Lack of Physical Activity
- Diet and Food Habits (e.g. Caffeine, Large Bedtime Snacks)

Tips for Creating a Healthy Sleep Foundation

- Create a visual bedtime schedule
- Limit the number of activities in the nighttime routine
- Put stimulating and/or difficult activities earlier in the evening
- Put relaxing and enjoyable activities near bedtime
- Reward your child for following his/her bedtime schedule
- Create a comfortable sleep environment (quiet, dark, temperature)
- Perform the nighttime routine in the same order every night

Symptoms to Watch For

- Frequently snoring
- Pauses in breathing
- Hard to wake in the morning
- Falling asleep during the day or overly tired
